ALAS, POOR LUTON.

State Press is a great sympathizer. His heart is at times burdened for those upon whom the hand of misfortune falls heavily. There is a distinctiveness, too, about his sympathy, in that it is often of a kind that takes the skin off. Hear how he sympathizes with a fellow newspaper worker:

"When a grown man deliberately makes up his mind to go into newspaper work he ought to be willing to absorb the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune until he looks like a human pin cushion. There is J. K. Lutton, for instance. For years Mr. Lutton has been traveling solicitor and correspondent for the Bonham News. He knows every farmhouse in Fannin County and everybody knows him. He used to ride a faithful sorrel nag called Joe Bailey, and the nag toted him over thousands of rough places. But without warning Joe Bailey stumbled one day, fell and tossed Mr. Lutton into the harsh embraces of a barb wire fence. This necessitated Mr. Lutton's changing his clothes and politics; also it endangered his standing in the Sunday School. Such things sometimes happen to Mr. Lutton, and his griefs differ only in kind from those of newspaper people who work at desks. But an even harder blow recently befell Mr. Lutton. He was regaled with a good dinner at a hospitable country home, a dinner in which the kindly housewife took a justifiable pride, and the guest at the board testified to his appreciation by a hearty consumption of the viands. Then he wrote to his paper and mentioned the dinner, saying it was hard to beat. But the types made him say the dinner was hard to eat, and now he is afraid to go back into that community."

PATTERSON AND PROHIBITION.

Former Governor Malcolm R. Patterson of Tennessee has joined the church and is now out making prohibition speeches. Did you ever? Well, that only verifies the biblical assertion that all things are possible; and if all things are possible, we may yet live to see our own governor introduced to a Houston temperance rally by Hon. Jacob Wolters. That would be something worth while.—Groesbeck Journal.

Both Governor Colquitt and Colonel Wolters could very consistently stand side by side as a temperance rally. Both are temperate men, though not prohibitionists. As for ex-Governor Patterson, he is not the first prominent man to turn prohibitionist after joining the church. We have more than one such example in Texas. Moreover, there is one remarkable thing about prohibition and anti-prohibition. When an anti-prohibitionist joins the church he may change to a prohibitionist, but when a prohibitionist becomes a member of the church he doesn't turn anti-prohibitionist. On the average the more church people there are in a community, the more prohibitionists there are. The reverse proposition also holds—the fewer the church members, the more anti-prohibitionists. It would appear then that the way for prohibitionists to get a majority everywhere is to make prohibition more of a religious than a political cult. But—but it is easier to make the preachers believe that than to make the politicians believe it.—Galveston News.

LOVE.

The love by which President Wilson wants this country to rule is evidently the kind a father has for his son when he flogs the stuffing out of him.—Bryan Eagle.

Love is all the better for being backed up by authority. The love of God is embedded in his power to penalize those who scorn it. The affection of a father for his child is bound up in the elder's duty to punish the younger for the younger's good. So with President Wilson—he would rule by love; all the same he is getting to the point where he is in a humor to snatch somebody baldheaded down about Mexico City.—Galveston News.

A friend writes us from Houston to get him a good "coon" dog. Time was when we could have done so without much trouble, but like most of the other old-fashioned affairs, a genuine "coon" dog is now only a matter of history.—Navasota Examiner.

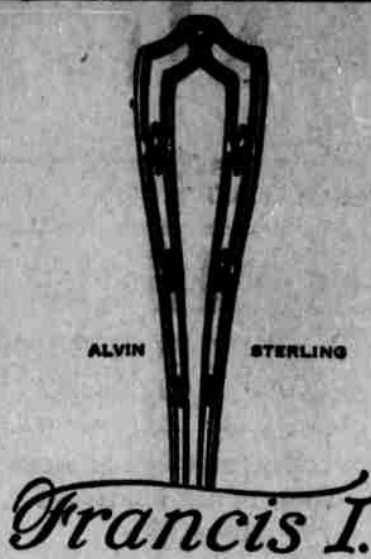

Coon dogs, muzzle loaders, winding blades, spinning wheels, candle moulds, hand-spike toters, and tongue-steers once were, but today they are not.

The Tyler Courier-Times is authority for the statement that the tax rate in Tyler is $1.80 on the $100 valuation, and yet the city has to borrow ten per cent money to pay its current bills. Bryan's rate is $1.15, and under the splendid business management of the present council, all bills are being promptly met and the city's indebtedness is being rapidly paid off. By January 1, they expect to be entirely free from debt and every department on a cash basis.

Both President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan were much pleased with the result of Tuesday's elections. Democracy triumphed in nearly every instance, and they take it as an endorsement by the people of the policies of government being followed by the present administration.

It said, we do not know how true it is, that the president of China has seven wives. China has adopted a republican form of government, which carries with it the idea of liberty, but there can never be much liberty in a country where the president himself is in such heavy bondage.

Yesterday, the first of the State "Good Roads Days," was not very propitious for road work, but today the roads were ripe for the drag and one hundred drags should have been busy throughout the county. The results would have been great.

The clock is about ready to strike in Harry Thaw's case. Whether it will be the pealing of gladsome bells or the tolling of funeral notes, remains to be seen.

A soft answer doesn't turn away the young man who is in love.

Love is responsible for most of the happiness and unhappiness in the world.

Even with abundance of free raw material some men are unable to make good.

CITY BUILDING NOTES

By L. M. WARD, of Shreman, President Commercial Executives' Association.

Discontention is commercial leprosy.

Don't shirk and knock; build and boost.

Patronize home industry; every purchase is a boost.

Civic beauty is an important branch of city building.

The undertaker becomes a city builder when he gets a knocker.

The best and cheapest city building proposition is good roads.

Confidence is the companion of success; have faith in your city.

Lazy men are just as useless as dead ones and take up a lot more room.

The fellow who has the future prosperity of his town in mind is a valuable citizen.

A good commercial organization is as necessary to the growth of a town as moisture is to growing crops.

A commercial club's purpose is to establish and maintain co-operative effort and harmonious action in all things leading to the upbuilding of the community.

PROHIBITION SHOULD NOT BE MAIN ISSUE

Judge Norman G. Kittrell Says There Should be Other Things to Decide Fitness.

Houston, Texas, Nov. 6.—Judge Kittrell of this city who is one of the staunchest prohibitionists in Texas, has issued a public statement in opposition to making prohibition the paramount test of fitness for governor and proposing a vote on state-wide prohibition with a ballot separating beer and whiskey. The Judge takes the position that fermented beverages is not a menace to society. There's no distilleries in Texas, but we have twelve malt liquor establishments, representing an investment of $7,027,000 and giving employment to a thousand persons with an annual payroll of $900,000.

VAVRA-KAPCHINSKI

There was solemnized on November 4 at 10 o'clock a. m. at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Father Gleissner officiating, the marriage of Mr. William Vavra and Miss Sophia Kapchinski.

After the ceremony the bridal party, relatives and invited guests repaired to the lovely country home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kapchinski, where a sumptuous wedding dinner awaited them. Music, dancing and merry-making formed a most pleasant afternoon and evening for all present.

The bride wore a shadow lace dress over white museline with wreath of orange blossoms and veil. The many handsome presents received attested the popularity of both bride and groom.

Both bride and groom are popular young people of the College community, and have many friends who extend best wishes for a long and happy wedded life. A FRIEND.
